EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

THE arrest and holding to bail of three captains of ocean steamers in New York for violation of passenger regulations is a timely movement. It is just at the present and coming season when the temptation to overcrowd the Atlantic steamers is greatest, and a salutary lesson now may prevent a horrible catastrophe in the course of the summer.

POSTMASTER GENERAL JAMES is undoubtedly giving excellent proof that he is the right man in the right place, and admirably adapted to complement the honest and manly theories upon which President Garfield proposes to conduct his administration. Some very extensive leaks have been in operation for a long time, and Mr. James is doing admirable service in caulking the seams.

ALL the Democratic newspapers of Virginia are forced to speak well of the Anti-Bourbon candidate for Governor, Colonel Cameron. The only thing they can say against him is that he has deserted the Bourbon party. That's pretty bad, but he is young and will doubtless be able to bear up under the burden. We venture the prediction that he will have plenty of congenial company within a very few years.

THE Supreme Court of New Hampshire has delivered an opinion which would appear to settle effectually in the affirmative the question whether the present Legislature has the right or not to elect a successor to Senator Rollins. The opinion is to the effect that this Legislature not only has the right, but is in duty bound to elect a United States Senator, in order that the State may have its constitutional representation in the Senate.

THE Liberian Republic has just passed safely through the throes of a general election. Mr. Gardner was re-elected to the Presidential chair and a gentleman of the name of Russell chosen to be his Vice Presidential associate. As the successful candidates stood upon a platform which called for the spread of education, the promotion of temperance and a variety of other good things of that kind, it is to be presumed that congratulations to the Liberian people are in order.

THE Ohio Republican convention at Cleveland on Wednesday showed that there is no lack of spirit and united fealty to the party, among the Buckeye Republicans at least. The proceedings of that body, were full of a lively interest, and bid fair for a spirited and successful campaign this fall. The renomination of Governor Foster by acclamation was not only a well deserved recognition of the eminent services of that gentleman to the State and the party, but secured a leader for the campaign who knows how to make a gallant fight and whose name has already the prestige of success.

To resign was bad enough, but if it had meant actual stepping down and out, it could have been tolerated. To resign on purpose to ask for reelection was and is utterly unjustifiable, improper and indecent. In the opinion of nine-tenths of the people of the State, Messrs. Conkling and Platt ought to be regarded as practically ineligible, and if they have not a sufficient sense of propriety themselves to perceive this the only alternative is for the representatives of the people to administer the rebuke they have invited by electing two others in their places. The course they have adopted is without a precedent in American history. It should be so treated that it never can become a precedent for future imitation.—Poughkeepsie Eagle.

City and Country.

Reference to the vital and mortality statistics alone would never furnish a clue to the solution of the problem of the growth of large cities. Last week, for instance, the deaths exceeded the births in New York about thirty-three per cent. The average excess of deaths per week is about twenty-three per cent., yet the growth of that city in population is constant and considerable. The explanation of this seeming paradox must be looked for in the statistics of immigration from the old world and from the surrounding country. There is a pretty constant human current from both sources toward the centres of population, which in this country are also the centres of trade and corporate industry. But as the country shows a constant and considerable growth in population, it necessarily follows that outside of cities the births not only exceed the deaths, but that the proportion of the whole number born surviving infancy very largely exceeds that of cities.

The reasons for the disproportionate death-rate in populous towns are partly obvious and partly obscure. Crowding alone works against the salubrity of the atmosphere, but crowding as we see it in American cities will not account for the difference. Defective drainage also works against health, but investigation has shown that art in cities has remedied many natural defects of drainage which prevail in the country. Even in purely agricultural regions, settled up 150 years ago, nothing has been done to improve the drainage. Surface impurities have in some cases so thoroughly impregnated the soil that every disturbance of the top-soil gives a fresh impulse to malarial disorders. In other regions, having a stiffer soil, diseases of the throat and lungs become so general as to excite alarm. The remedy for this latter trouble has been found in extensive under-drainage, which, when carried out over large areas, reduces the humidity of the atmosphere and thus reduces the death-rate.

Another reason for the greater mortality in cities is furnished by the greater intensity of life in a crowd. The struggle for survival is there more desperate, but there is no reason to suppose that the struggle for mere subsistence is more intense in the city than it is in the country. The artificial demands of the city are, however, much heavier, and the struggle for life is intensified by the constant effort to respond to those demands. What are deemed luxuries in the rural regions are deemed necessities of life in the cities, and in the struggle to secure these, men and women soon arrive at the breaking strain. We know this from the greater prevalence of all the forms of nervous prostration in populous towns. The spectacle of men and women breaking down at middle age is quite common in cities, and infrequent in the country. At the same time, whoever has studied the conflict for subsistence in city and country is aware that the excess of hard work is with the latter. Yet it is an undeniable fact that without accessions from the rural populations, cities would in a few years show a steady decline in population. They are fed from the country, which furnishes higher conditions of health and that constitutional stamina which tides youth over the quicksands that lie between infancy and the adult period. But the fact that life is too intense in large towns is of serious import.—North American.

THE Hebrew Messenger is of the opinion that such a time-honored prayer as "Our Father who art in Heaven," it would seem, has entered too deeply into the hearts and minds of Christians, and is too closely identified with the tenderest phases of family life, to permit of even the slightest verbal change. "Deliver us from the evil one," instead of "Deliver us from evil," will not be a welcome specimen of the work of revision.

Penn's Bones Again.

The Philadelphians, who quarrelled with William Penn as long as he lived, are resolved still to pick matter for fresh squabbles out of his bones. We mentioned, says the N. Y. Tribune, some time ago their intention to bring his body from its long resting-place in Buckinghamshire to make of it the principal feature in the parade of their coming bi-centennial celebration of his landing, and then to deposit it under the enormous stone structure which they are building for their municipal courts. The idea seemed particularly inappropriate and lacking in taste, as the great Proprietary was not at all fond of his Pennsylvania subjects while living, and could not be persuaded to remain with them; and as he abominated "big breathless towns," and was by his religion opposed to all parades and still more to courts of law, why he should be hauled out of his quiet grave to Philadelphia, and buried under half a dozen courts with the military beating of drums and firing of cannon, to gratify the vanity of the city officials, we fail to discover.

However, Governor Hoyt has nominated, as probably the most universally respected of Pennsylvania's eminent citizens, the philanthropist George L. Harrison, to go to England and confer with the Penn family relative to the proposed removal of the body. It must be of course a representative Pennsylvanian that would be fittest for this office, and hence the Philadelphians are resolved that Mr. Harrison shall accept it, knowing that he if any man can bestow upon the ungracious task tact and courtesy. In the meantime, some noisy kinsman of Penn in the tenth degree is raging in the background, claiming that he is the only proper person to handle the affair; and two other "lineal descendants" in Chester declare their readiness to go over, resurrect the body and decamp with it to this country.

The more the business opened out the more bad taste was shown, until the trustees of the Friends' burying ground in Jordans have sent word that they will not permit Penn's body to be removed from those of his wife, children and friends, where it has slept undisturbed for the better part of two centuries. We hope that ends the matter. Penn's subjects and sons gave the poor old man nothing but poverty, vexation and sorrow in his old age. Their descendants should at least let his bones rest in peace.

SAYS the North American: It is a pity that the bill for the prevention of speculative life insurance, which had been passed by the State Senator and was awaiting the action of the House, should have been defeated at the last minute, for it provided a means whereby a pernicious practice, which seems to be widely prevalent, might be promptly and conclusively suppressed. There is, however, reason to believe that the laws in existence might, if they were properly enforced, be made equal to the occasion. To be entitled to receive the amount of a policy upon the falling in of the life to which it relates, he who claims under the policy must have an insurable interest in the life of the person insured, such as that of a wife in the life of her husband, or a creditor in that of his debtor. This is not the case with speculative insurance, and its illegality on that ground alone seems to be clear. The trouble is that when insurance is conducted upon the mutual assessment plan, and several members are engaged in the same practice, it is no one's interest to see that the law is enforced.

WADE HAMPTON did exert his influence in the recent one-sided election in South Carolina, but he cannot be said to have thrown it on the side of fair play and honest politics. A few days before the election he said to a correspondent of the Charleston News and Courier: "The special election for member of Congress is of great importance, not only to the State, but to the Democratic party at large. If Mr. Dibble is elected, there is every reason to believe that he will take and keep his seat. Therefore it is of the last consequence that every Democrat should exert himself to the utmost. If all work zealously, success can be gained, and the 11d District will secure a worthy successor to the able and lamented O'Connor." Nobody knows better than Wade Hampton what it means to have a South Carolina Democrat "exert himself to the utmost." It means in a close election the stuffing of at least a thousand tissue-balloons in every ballot-box.

MUCH interest attaches to the Bankers' Convention, which is to meet at Niagara Falls in August. The range of subjects selected for discussion embrace almost every phase of financial interest, and as those who speak upon them will be men of practical acquaintance with the matters under notice, it is to be expected that the results reached will be far more important than those likely to arise from the sessions of the Monetary Conference, where questions of statesmanship and crude theories appear to have held too much sway. Perhaps the most important subject selected hitherto is "The Currency of the Future." It is one which is qualified to exercise the best abilities of the financiers who will discuss it. America will certainly become and remain the largest of the world's markets, and it is fitting, therefore, that the basis of the medium of exchange should be settled here.

THE Philadelphia Press says of the bribery charge against the Depeu men: It is either a genuine and scandalous attempt to control the result by corrupt means, or else it is an infamous conspiracy to blacken an innocent cause by false accusation. The first and prevailing public impression will be that the whole story is a bold political device to check a movement which was rapidly making great headway with strong prospects of full success, and that payment was arranged to give it plausibility. If it shall be shown to be a false charge trumped up as part of a political plot, it will crush the conspirators with infamy; and if, on the other hand, it shall be sustained by undeniable evidence, it will overwhelm all who may be involved in it.

WASHINGTON.

Special Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, June 11, 1881.

Room 59 of the Post Office Department, will, perhaps live in history. It is in this room that the government's case against the star route ring will be made up. In this room Attorney General MacVeigh is occupied with his lieutenants arranging the government's case, and it is at that stage now where the government is ready to appeal to a grand jury and subsequently to 12 honest men. The room itself is made up of a part of the space formerly used by the city Post Office. Near the door is stationed a messenger, whose sole duty seems to be to look imposing and make a note of those who go in or out or linger any length of time near the premises. Within the room presents a comfortable, though by no means imposing appearance. About the centre is an ordinary table. At the side of this sit Messrs. Gibson and Woodward, the Government agents. When Col. Cook—the special Attorney General appointed to prosecute this case—or the Attorney General drop in, they occupy seats at the head of the table. The government is in earnest in this matter, and though it will not get the cases into Court before next September they will be energetically prosecuted when once in shape. The star route contractors, however, are not idle, and have engaged in their defence, Bob Ingersoll, Ben Butler, and several others of equal prominence.

The oft repeated statement made by the Postmaster General that no further removals will be made just now in the Post Office Department, has brought about among the employees a feeling of security, and the excitement which reigned in the Department for a month or more is considerably allayed.

In consequence of the exhaustion of the appropriation for completing the Census, the clerks employed have all tendered their resignations to take effect on the 15th of the month, and have signified their desire to continue their work without pay and trust to Congress to make them whole in December. That Congress will do this there seems to be no doubt. By this action on the part of the clerks the work will not be much delayed, and the public will derive the benefits of the completed report some time in the fall.

OUR NEW YORK LETTER.

From our own Correspondent.

TRIBUTIONS OF A FOOTER WHOSE PRACTICES SAVOR OF UTAH—FATAL CHOICE OF A FAIR ORPHAN—A COBBLER'S LAST—SUNDAY AND DIVERSE STRIPES—THE HOUR OF PLENTY RUNNING OVER.

NEW YORK, June 6, 1881.

POOR Levy, the blower, is always getting into scrapes, or suffering the consequences of old ones. It will be remembered that he married some time ago the pretty actress, daughter of a very popular managing actress, Minnie Conway, considerably to the disgust of multitudes, both among those who knew and those who didn't personally, now the parties. It was said at the time that Levy was simply committing bigamy. So it turns out. He had left a wife in London from whom he has been legally separated—not divorced, by a large majority—and as he failed to pay her alimony, she turns up now to make him if she can. Levy is mad and says that he'll go where the laws won't interfere with him, and I dare say he will skip to France or Russia or somewhere, jumping his bail and outwitting the troublesome woman. As he says his cornet and fame will always give him a good living, provided he keeps his lungs and embouchure in good shape, but what a position for Minnie Conway? Her marriage, which turns out to be no marriage, was a very sudden affair and proved a crusher to a faithful adorer whom I knew, who was supposed to be engaged to her at the time. He left the country and now edits a paper in Liverpool.

I took no notice last week of the latest walking match simply because the whole thing of pedestrianism has degenerated (if it could degenerate) into a form of coarse hippodroming that didn't deserve recognition. The fact, however, that a little Brooklyn shoemaker actually covered 578 miles and beat everybody else's record, seems, however, to be worthy of mention. From all accounts the score was fairly kept, and the fact undoubted. Vint ought now to stick to his last—his first walking match ought to be his last, anyway.

The horse-car drivers and conductors have been threatening a strike, and as their arrangements were conducted with a little more sense than usual, less hotheaded turbulent passion, and more unanimity and determination, over 5,000 of them having agreed to "tie up" together; the Coons (represented by the managers of the respective companies) came down and broke the back of the strike before it was in existence (that's a hurray but I can't help it—I'm in a hurry and it's expensive any way) by an advance of wages all round. The bootblacks were talking of a strike too, with a view of resumption of the old ten cents-a-shine tariff, but some mischievous alarmist having started the story that a machine had been invented to polish uppers at a large profit in ten shakes of a lamb's tail for a cent a pair, the boys were disheartened, utterly cast down, bewildered, and wilted. They went to the docks to refresh by swimming, and underwent divers strikes from policemen stationed there to protect public decency. The junkmen have also been on the rampage because "thim Eyetallyuns does be givin' ungodly big prices for rags, had scan to thim. Sure they don't make a livin' profit and destroy the business." The Alderman will have to interfere. The fact is, the old monopolists, with their hideously clanging cattle bells, have experienced competition and it puzzles them. They will probably strike too. And the brigands (no misnomer in many cases) will probably strike back. Our streets can not be made much dirtier if strewn with the disjointed remains of the whole fraternity, and they will not be so noisy.

I heard an Englishman remark yesterday that "You're such a thundering big country you know that your crops may always be good. If you lose 'em here, you know, why, you know, you get 'em somewhere else." True for him. We heard a

Poetry.

Platonic.

I knew it the first of the summer—
I knew it the same at the end—
That you and your love were plighted,
But couldn't you be my friend?
Couldn't we sit in the twilight,
Couldn't we walk on the shore,
With only a pleasant friendship
To bind us, and nothing more?

There was never a word of nonsense
Spoken between us two,
Though we lingered off in the garden
Till the roses were wet with dew,
We touched on a thousand subjects—
The moon and the stars above;
But our talks were tinged with silence,
With never a hint of love.

"A wholly platonic friendship,"
You said I had proved to you,
"Could bind a man and a woman
The whole long season through,
With never a thought of folly,
Though both are in their youth."
What would you have said, my lady,
If you had known the truth?

Had I done what my mad heart prompted—
Gone down on my knees to you,
And told you my passionate story
There in the dusk and dew;
My burning, burdensome story,
Hidden and hushed so long,
My story of hopeless loving—
Say, would you have thought it wrong?

But I fought with my heart and conquered—
I hid my wound from sight;
You were going away in the morning,
And I said a calm good night.
But now, when I sit in the twilight,
Or when I walk by the sea,
The friendship quite "platonic"
Comes surging over me,
And a passionate longing fills me
For the roses, the dusk and the dew—
For the beautiful summer vanished—
For the moonlit talks—and you.

Perfectly, Awfully Lovely.

There was once a perfectly modern girl,
With perfectly modern ways,
Who saw perfection in everything
That happened to meet her gaze.

Such perfectly lovely things she saw,
And perfectly awful, too,
That none would have dared to doubt her word
So perfectly, perfectly true.

The weather, she said, in summer time,
Was perfectly awfully warm;
The winter was perfect, too, when there came
Some perfectly terrible storm.

She went to a perfectly horrid school,
In a perfectly horrid town,
And the perfectly hateful teachers there
Did things up perfectly brown.

Her lessons were perfectly, fearfully long,
But never were perfectly said,
And when she failed, as often she did,
Her face grew perfectly red.

The church she attended in perfectly mag—
With a perfectly heavenly spire,
And perfect crowds go there to hear
A perfectly stunning choir.

I might go on with this "perfectly" poem
And write to the end of time,
But fearing to wear your patience out,
Will bring to an end my rhyme.

Our Story Teller.

Camp Royal.

It was Robert Fairfax that first proposed starting for the frontier mining region. Rendered desperate by an unlooked-for domestic calamity, he felt that he must get away from all his old associations or he should go mad.

Not being engaged in very lucrative business myself, and having no "kith nor kin" with whom to advise I finally allowed him to urge me into a promise to go with him as soon as my small business accounts could be settled satisfactorily; and so a month after the subject was first broached, we found ourselves in New York with through tickets for the West.

We took our own time prospecting along the Rocky Range from the Spanish Peaks on to Dakota. This was about the same time that the cities of Deadwood and Custer were born among the Black Hills.

Finally, one day we came into the claim of quite a number of miners. Their tents were pitched in the mouth of a little canon where the "findings" gave promise of "paying dirt."

We joined our fortunes to "Camp Royal," and each in turn was cook and general scrub. The boys were a rough set, but Fairfax and myself in no wise held aloof from them. It wasn't safe to do so in that wild region, for quite often your enemies might prove to be those of your own household.

Roving squads of Indians were often seen lurking about the hills, but none had shown any symptoms of molesting us.

Infernal beggars, they hung around the trains and camps all the way along the Rockies. We noticed one small party of traders that came into Laramie—a thievish set of half-breeds and jockeys, always keeping their women, like whipped dogs, away in the rear.

I know Fairfax and I had stretched ourselves down by the fire in the barracks, when a low, wild cry startled us, and looking up we saw a young Indian girl flitting from the door. We ran out, but she had vanished. Fairfax only got a glimpse of her; I saw her distinctly. It was a matter of great wonderment what she could want of us. We mentioned the subject several times and then we forgot all about it.

My taciturn messmate, Fairfax, was most unlike the fellow that I had known in academy days. The calamity of which I have spoken came to me second hand; he never mentioned it.

They said he was doing a good business at the time he fell in love with an opera singer. They were married privately and in haste, because he knew how violently his friends would oppose the step. He lavished his time and money upon the dazzling prima donna, but his love-match soon came to a disastrous end.

He endeavored to persuade her to leave the stage and its unholy influences, but adulation was her life. "New faces and new conquest" was her motto, and she laughed him to scorn.

His love, deep and sincere, caused him to attempt to exercise a healthful authority over her. Alas! she fled the country with an Italian tenor, wrecking the splendid hopes and ambitions of a gifted and scholarly man.

Knowing this, I bore his silent misanthropy with all the patience imaginable.

One day we went prospecting up the canon. When we returned at night we were astonished to see a little mustang, or Indian pony, grazing near the camp. Coming up, we were still further amazed to behold a young squaw before the fire broiling the meat and turning the hoe cake, while the boys sat round with smiling faces and a vague expectancy of manner.

She was talking volubly with a half-breed, pouring the soft aboriginal dialect in an unbroken stream from her expressive mouth.

On our entrance she stopped her speech, as suddenly as we stopped our advance.

A woman in a camp in that wild place, an alien from her kindred—regardless of any code of morality or religion—and for what purpose?

She took her place in "Camp Royal" as the squaw takes hers in the wigwam of her red master—to drudge and toil, but not a man in the mines would allow her to bring a bucket of water, or break a stick of wood. She was to those men like a Druid priestess. Sometimes I shuddered to think of the ending of this affair. Refined social life cannot understand existence beyond the pale of civilization. Every wild instinct and passion here goes unleashed; and should this young lioness fawn on one more than another, that man's doom was sealed.

One night I came home early. I had a sudden attack of illness and came out alone.

The girl was dressed in her gay Indian toggery, the scarlet, spangled petticoat, and embroidered moccasins, and with strings of beads around her shapely neck, but her hair, instead of hanging like a black mane about her shoulders, was coiled around her small, beautiful head, and she wept as she sat with her face buried in her hands.

When she heard me, she sprang to her feet, with her cheeks flushed, and her dark eyes fairly blazing.

"Are you a spy, Lenox?" she exclaimed in flexible and pure English.

I staggered to my bunk completely astounded.

"Assuredly not; I did not dream of this. Who are you?"

"It does not matter. Let me trust my secret in your hands."

"Thank you."

And catching a glimpse of some other miner coming, who seemed to be mistrustful that my sickness was feigned, she instantly unbound her hair, and was giving me specimens of the unadulterated Indian dialect, when the man was near enough to hear.

After this I cautiously watched her every moment. I longed to see the stain washed from her pretty oval face. I was interested in her. I went deeper than her present life, degraded as she might be and evidently was. What fate had reached her; or what anti-natal surroundings had robbed her of that inherent charm of womanhood—a shrinking, sensitive soul.

The miners were, on the whole, a wild, lawless set; but she could drink whisky with the strongest, and seldom swayed in her walk. When her brilliant eyes were glowing with the rush of the hot liquor through the pulses of her being, she could send a steady glance along the barrel of the rifle and pierce the target's centre three times out of five. And at such times she would dance a Mexican fandango with Joe of Santa Fe, or leap from the ground upon her mustang's back, and giving the shrill yell of Sioux, carole over the level plateau below Camp Royal with all the lithe grace of the aboriginal.

They called her Siserece. She was Joe's Siserece, and Jim's Siserece, and so on; only Robert Fairfax and myself never induced her to drink, nor to go off into her wild revels. I never saw her speaking to Fairfax as to the others, and I did not wonder, for he never spoke to her.

By and by alarming rumors reached us of Indian depredations and massacres among the miners. Small companies of men were fleeing for their lives in all directions. Should we be molested? We dared not think of the atrocities that occasional prospectors narrated, for our claim was "panning out" grandly. There certainly was everything to fear, and a gloom hung over us. Every unusual noise startled us from our slumbers at night, and caused us to cast wary glances about us by day.

One night I went to the spring for water. Siserece joined me when a little out from the camp. Her manner was intensely excited.

"Lenox," she said in her fair English, "manifest no surprise, don't seem to notice anything, but glance up to the red buttes to your right, where the sunbeams are paling into dusk. See you aught?"

My cursory glance revealed nothing. I told her so.

"Pretend to stoop and pick this stone from the path. Take a longer view away towards the Pilot Knobs."

"Nothing."

"You would never be a scout. Two little tufts, like sage-brush, have come there to-night, at least, they were not there yestereven."

"And?"

"They are Indian scouts watching the camp."

"We must return and warn the boys."

"No hurry," she said, "keep on. They won't disturb us for hours. I know them."

"How long have you been with the Indians?"

"Five months. They robbed the stage coach on which I was going to Laramie, and killed all the passengers but myself. I was saved by becoming the wife of the chief."

Here a fierce imprecation hissed from between her teeth.

"I could not escape. I had no friends to rescue me. I was married to him, but the ceremony, consisting of singing, and dancing and shaking of hand, I did not consider binding."

I studied their language and was to betray them if possible. No opportunity offered, and I feigned contentment until I threw them off their guard. The night after I looked into the barracks and saw you and—and your messmate. I found the old chief's heart, and with hideous meaning she tapped her breast, where was discernible the hilt of a stiletto.

"And taking one of their mustangs, by long, secret night travel followed your trail. Ah! I became skillful in learning their tricks and their arts, and now—"

I waited for her to go on.

"The scouts up yonder may be looking for me. The relatives of my deceased husband will follow my trail but the camp must be warned."

She disappeared from my side before any of the miners had seen her. On my return I told them that Siserece had seen Indian scouts in the hills. Our camp was seriously alarmed and a guard was posted that night, and the next and the next, but not a moccasin track was seen, nor the shadow of an eagle feather. I began to doubt the evidence of my senses and Siserece's wisdom.

A week passed, and with it the scare of the camp had subsided. The "diggings" were rich, and we were planning the sinking of a shaft. A treacherous unconcern fell over us. Only Siserece abated neither her fears nor her vigils. From midnight through the small hours of morning she moved out and in the camp. Awakened at any time then, and you would see her going out or coming in, or crouching in the canvas doorway, always with Sante Fe Joe's rifle in her hand.

With this weapon she was most familiar, and could hit the target at longest range.

One night I was awakened by a cool, firm hand being placed on my mouth and Siserece's subdued whisper:

"Lenox, don't get up—creep over the men; come outside."

She moved away, and dropping on her hands and knees at the doorway, went out with the lithe grace and stillness of a lioness creeping on its prey.

I joined her, and again she whispered:

"Take a sight by this tent stake up the slope to the south of the canon. Now, were those bushes there at sunset?"

I was ashamed to acknowledge that I did not know.

"Well, now look another way for five minutes, and then again take the bearings."

Ah, now I perceive the dark spots have moved. They were not far from the camp now.

It was night, or early morning attack that was meditated.

"Creep noiselessly in and awaken the camp," she said. "Don't let them make a sound."

But this could not be done with dispatch. Aroused from a deep and dreamless sleep, with always some imprudent ones in such a company, some sleepy exclamations were made, which precipitated the catastrophe. With their peculiar cry the savages were upon us.

In the first, faint glimmer of morning, Camp Royal made a stand for its life. Outnumbered, two to one, the struggle was a futile, but a desperate one. The poor boys fell rapidly. At last, only Robert Fairfax, myself, and Siserece were left against the desperate odds.

A bullet aimed at Fairfax's breast was saved from the mark by Siserece springing before him and receiving it in her own bosom.

"Fly! fly! to the canon!" she cried. "Robert Fairfax—no—greater love—than to give his life." She fell forward dead. Involuntarily we burst through the rear of Camp Royal, and without a thought of reaching the canon alive dashed away, pursued by the bullets from the guns of the red devils in pursuit. We did succeed, wounded and bruised, in reaching a narrow, rocky defile, where, turning at bay, we brought down the first three devils in pursuit.

The rest halted, and then retreated. A precipitous cliff above us and a gulf of rock below, and only this narrow path to the cavernous chamber where we were secreted. We had only made choice of death. We knew the red devils would wear us out by starvation, if they dared not approach along the narrow shelf of rock, but instinct had, impelled us to the movement, which sober judgment would never have permitted.

But by one of those strange Providences which are unaccountable, McNabe's corps, sent farther up the hills to protect the miners from Indian raids, came upon our camp before noon. Sighting the cavalry from our eyrie, stiff and smarting with wounds, we ventured forth.

And Siserece, sinning and sinned against made atonement and redeemed her womanhood at last, by a voluntary sacrifice of her life for the man she loved.

Local Small Talk.

—A handsome new hotel register graces the counter of the Brockerhoff House.

—Francis Murphy, according to our exchanges, is shortly to be married and make a tour of England.

—Chambersburg's sweet girl graduates are presented with a basket of candy. Some "white" about that.

—Berwind, White & Co. have put in new scales, of the Howe manufacturing, at their coal yard in this place.

—Fourth of July, the next holiday on the list, will soon be here. The prospect for a celebration in Bellefonte is not very flattering. Let's all go a fishing.

—A number of our young people are sighing for a strawberry festival. Be patient, children; strawberries are coming down to five cents a box after awhile, and then you can have a festival all to yourselves.

—Ladies should endeavor not to scream on suddenly observing a train bearing down upon them while crossing the track at the depot. They are liable to injure their lungs, and, then, again, there is danger of frightening the engine off the track.

—An item in the Pittsburgh Commercial states that a company of Southern gentlemen have purchased the furnace property at Mill Hall, Clinton county, and intend to put it in operation. We don't know how much truth is attached to the report.

—The arrival of a young son at the residence of Court Reporter Reber, Tuesday night, was an event that caused its paternal ancestor to feel as though he was a "bigger man than old Grant." We congratulate the happy parents on the arrival of a son who may be a source of comfort to them when he grows up, and a medium through which they'll get rid of all their loose cash.

—Harry Woods, formerly a reporter on an Altoona paper, and who visited Bellefonte during the Senatorial deadlock at Harrisburg to interview Gen. Beaver, was himself "interviewed" in Pittsburgh the other day by a policeman for the larceny of a pin. His strong thirst for liquor, it is said, impelled him to the deed. That must have been the motive, as newspaper men, as a general thing, are strictly honest.

—As showing the amount of business transacted by telephone in Bellefonte, we would state that on an average of three hundred connections are made at the exchange office daily. The number of regular subscribers is twenty-five. Williamsport, with one hundred and fifty subscribers, or thereabouts, brags of making 1,000 connections per day, which, comparatively, is not as high an average as Bellefonte's.

Missing.

The Hazleton Bulletin publishes the following, and requests exchanges to copy: "Moses Fenley, aged 23 or 24 years, rather stout and tall, worked as a gangway laborer at Sugar Notch, in the early part of the year, but was taken with fever and went to the hospital for a few days, and afterwards left the place, whence nobody seems to know. He used to write regularly to his father, Miles Fenley, who lives at Silver Creek, Schuylkill county, but the old man has heard nothing of him since the latter part of February, and fears that his son has met with foul play. There is hope, however, that he is alive, and that he has gone west. If the papers in the mining regions, where he would most likely go for work, will please copy, it may restore the missing son and relieve the family's distress."

County Pickings.

The Franklin Union Sunday-school of Buffalo Run, will "festivalize" in Knox's school house on Saturday evening next, June 11th. The sending up of a large paper balloon, now being constructed, will be an out-door feature of the occasion. The proceeds of the entertainment will be devoted towards refurnishing the school library.

Two Germans, living with Mr. Philip Gates, at Gatesburg, can boast of having the finest crop of "Spanish needles" in the county. Their limited knowledge of farming led them to suppose that the "needles" were to mato plants, and they have been carefully nursing the growth for about six weeks. A day or two ago their mistake was explained to them, and the display of oratorical fireworks which filled the air immediately afterwards is said to have been withering.

Speculators in human lives have begun operations in Centre county. The victim in one case, the only one of which we have any definite knowledge, was an old lady named Barbara Waite, who died at Wolfe's Store on Tuesday, May 31st. Deceased was over 80 years of age, and during her sickness, it is said that policies footing up to about $60,000 were taken out on her life in several of the speculative companies in this State. We understand that the clergymen in that vicinity are greatly incensed over the proceeding, and denounce in strong terms the parties concerned.

Mr. B. W. Rumberger, of Loveville, smiles from ear to ear and looks right over the tops of the houses when he walks out now. It's a boy, and arrived June 1st. The News sends greetings.

Mr. Andrew Shivery, one of Buffalo Run's energetic farmers, is making some extensive improvements on his property. A new roof covers his barn, and carpenters are now engaged in building an addition thereto.

Mr. William Cole, wagon maker at Loveville, we are pleased to learn, is doing a flourishing business this season. Mr. Cole turns out good, solid work, which is the secret of his success.

Centre Hall is agitated over the birth, in that place, of three kittens joined together at the under hind part of the body. The Reporter says the triplets have perfect bodies and members, and are in a good healthy condition. Scat!

Car Works Notes.

Seven cars have thus far been manufactured at the works, but none have been shipped. The company is experiencing considerable difficulty at present in procuring wheels as fast as required, which accounts for the slow operations.

It requires the labor of five men, one full day, to erect a car—that is, to put it together after the material has been prepared.

As soon as a car is completed it is subjected to a rigid inspection, and if any part is found defective it has to be rebuilt. A. J. Aukerman, of Altoona, is the inspector sent here by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, for which corporation the works are now engaged on an order of five hundred cars.

The engine built at Duncan & Co.'s foundry for the works has been placed in position, with the exception of the boiler, but will not be fired up as long as the dam contains its present amount of water. The water power furnishes sufficient force to drive the machinery.

At last pay day over $2,000 were distributed among the operatives, being two weeks' wages. The company gives no checks to their men. Each employee receives an envelope at the office, containing his allowance in "pure stuff"—greenbacks and silver.

It is thought that in two weeks' time matters will be so adjusted that operations can be pushed forward in a brisk manner.

Meteorological.

Abstract of the Pennsylvania State College meteorological record for May:

Lowest temperature, May 4th, 36°.

Highest temperature at noon, May 12, 28 and 29, 88°.

Average temperature, 67°.

Warmest day, May 29th.

Highest barometer, May 4, 29.32.

Lowest barometer, May 17, 28.83.

Average barometer, 29.03.

Clear days, 14.

Stormy days, 12.

Rain fall for month, 2.82-100 inches.

—The gentlemanly agent for the American Cyclopaedia, Mr. Proctor, who has been canvassing in this territory, has sold over twenty complete works in Bellefonte alone. Considering the high price of the work, although more than worth it, we consider this pretty successful canvassing.

—Clearfield, according to the Journal, was struck by a cold wave on Wednesday. The extent of the damage is not stated.

A NATIONAL CURIOSITY.

What a Bellefonte Clergyman Unearthed on a Visit to the Cornplanter Reservation.

Our fellow-townsmen, and energetic Sunday-school worker, Rev. Crittenden, allowed us the pleasure of examining an interesting public document yesterday, which he unearthed a short time since near the Cornplanter Reservation of Seneca Indians, on the Allegheny river, between Warren and McKean counties. It is a copy of Washington's speech in reply to Cornplanter's appeal for a final settlement of affairs between the Senecas and the United States. The document is 2½x4½ feet in size, printed on coarse paper from large script, and besides the speech gives true likenesses of the Cornplanter Chief, George Washington and Thomas Jefferson. The paper was found in the garret of an old house occupied by an aged white couple, living close by the Reservation, and is thought to have been in existence over a hundred years. It is an object of considerable national interest and should be carefully preserved for future use, as it no doubt will be. Many, especially historical writers, would no doubt be willing to pay a handsome sum to possess this interesting document, but its present owner, we imagine, will not be induced to part with it very soon. After next Tuesday it is Mr. Crittenden's intention to place it on exhibition for a few days in the office of Clement Dale, Esq., where those who desire can have an opportunity of examining it.

By request, Rev. Crittenden has prepared us a brief sketch of the subject of this article which we publish below, and to which we call the attention of our readers.

Cornplanter, the Seneca Indian Chief.

Cornplanter was the last, and in respect to his character, the most interesting and remarkable of the Seneca chiefs. With a clear conviction that the Indians could gain nothing from the whites by hostile measures, he was an unyielding advocate of peace during the latter part of his life, covering forty years or more. While Red Jacket and other Seneca warriors bitterly opposed, Cornplanter favored the sale of their lands not needed for cultivation by themselves, and also encouraged the whites in their efforts to educate the Indian youth. Although this noble Chief was not a Christian, nominal or otherwise, he was too conscientious to oppose any religious efforts of the whites in behalf of his people.

Cornplanter finally retired with a few of his nearest kin to the banks of the Allegheny river in Pennsylvania, not far from the New York State line, where a reservation of six hundred acres of land was ceded by the Government to him and his descendants. The reservation has ever since been known by the name of Cornplanter. He died Feb. 18, 1836, above one hundred years of age. A substantial monument erected to his memory marks the place of his burial near the centre of the reservation. Not more than one hundred and twenty-five Indians, all told, now occupy the reservation. We have among them a hopeful mission Sunday-school. They have also occasional preaching. With its present death rate, this once powerful native tribe must, before many years, close its earthly existence. With the blessing of God attending the Gospel means employed, it is hoped that the remnant still living may be saved to the world to come.

R. CRITTENDEN.

BELLEFONTE, JUNE, 1881.

Important Legislation.

The following important bill has been passed by both branches of the Legislature and signed by Governor Hoyt. Parties having pool rooms will govern themselves accordingly, as prosecution is likely to follow any violation of the law:

SECTION 1.—That if the proprietor, keeper, lessee or manager of any saloon, hotel, tavern, inn, billiard room or other place of resort or entertainment shall keep, maintain or permit to be played upon his premises, or in connection therewith, or having passage or communication to or with the same, the game or amusement of pool with balls or any other game of chance the result or price of forfeiture of payment in any form of such game or amusement shall be by drinks, liquors, spirituous, malt or brewed liquors, or any admixture thereof, he or she shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be sentenced for the first offense to pay a fine of one hundred dollars, and to undergo an imprisonment of not less than ninety days, and for the second offense to pay a fine of five hundred dollars and to undergo an imprisonment of not less than one year; and any license granted for the keeping of such saloon, hotel, tavern, inn, billiard room or other place of resort or amusement shall, upon such second conviction, be declared null and void by the court in which the said second offense shall be tried.

Approved June 1, A. D., 1881.

Miscellaneous.

If you cannot read this print distinctly by lamp or gaslight in the evening at a distance of 10 inches, your eyes are failing, no matter what your age, and your eyes need help. Your sight can be improved and preserved if properly corrected. It is a wrong idea that spectacles should be dispensed with as long as possible. If they assist the vision as they should, there is no danger of seeing too well, so long as the print is not magnified; it should look natural size but plain.

It is known to all who have been compelled to resort to the use of Spectacles (notwithstanding they may be perfectly fitted to correct the optical defects), that for some cause, not until recently well defined, their use was attended with fatiguing, smarting, and otherwise disagreeable sensations. This is a universal fact of experience, and has been supposed to be entirely beyond remedy. This disagreeable sensation and disturbance of the eye is produced chiefly, perhaps we ought to say entirely, from the fact that ordinary lenses increase the sensation of heat (to which the eye, more than any other organ or part of the body, is sensitive), as also the actinic or chemical properties of the rays of light.

It is well known that these peculiarities of light are identified with certain colors of each ray; and the point of importance, or without using technicalities, is to construct lenses so that these properties of light shall be neutralized; this can be done by introducing a neutralizing tint into their manufacture, the difficulty of which, however, consists in the selection of a color which shall have this effect, and, at the same time, shall not otherwise impair the lenses for purposes of vision. The

Arundel Tinted Lens

Is designed to effect this purpose. The peculiarity of its manufacture consists in the introduction into the glass of a slight Violet Color, in such manner that the high and low numbers of the lens prepared from this glass, although varying in thickness, are of the same delicate tint and of sufficient power to neutralize the heating and actinic power of the rays of light. Read the following:

[From R. S. Mershon, Esq., Zanesville, Ohio.]

"I have put the Arundel through the following tests:—I placed an eight inch Arundel, and an eight inch white lens side by side, sharply focused in the strong sunlight, with their foci directed on the bulbs of two thermometers, and the difference was four (4°) degrees in temperature in favor of the ARUNDEL. Again, I placed the same lenses side by side on a piece of sensitized photographic paper, and the white glass disclosed the surface quicker than the ARUNDEL. These two tests prove these two points, viz: that the ARUNDEL intercepts the solar heat-rays and the chemical rays also."

And the following from a Centre county man whose letter can be seen at my store:

"I am very much pleased with the glasses. They have been more beneficial to my eyes than all the medicine I ever put in them."

If you experience any unpleasantness in reading or can't see distinctly, come in and have your eyes tested. I think I have something good for you.

The Positive Cure

For all Female Complaints.

This preparation, as its name signifies, consists of vegetable properties that are harmless to the most delicate female. Upon one trial the merits of this Compound will be recognized, as relief is immediate; and when its use is continued, in ninety-nine cases in a hundred, a permanent cure is effected, as thousands will testify. On account of its proven merits, it is today recommended and prescribed by the best physicians in the country.

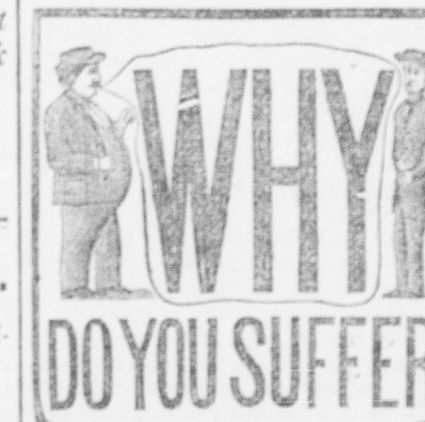

It will cure entirely the worst form of falls of the uterus, Leucorrhoea, irregular and painful menstruation, all Ovarian Troubles, Inflammation and Erosion, Floodings, all Displacements and the consequent spinal weakness, and is especially adapted to the Change of Life. It will dissolve and expel tumors from the uterus in an early stage of development. Its tendency to cancerous humors there is checked verily by its use.

In fact it has proved to be the great and best remedy that has ever been discovered. It permeates every portion of the system, and gives new life and vigor. It removes faintness, flatulency, drowsiness, allaying for stimulants, and relieves weakness of the stomach. It cures Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Irritation. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain in the back and loins, is always permanently cured by its use. It will at all times, and under all circumstances, act in harmony with the law that governs the female system.

For Kidney Complaints of either sex this compound is unsurpassed.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

It Cures Spavins, Splints, Curbs, Ringbones, and all similar Blemishes, and Removes the Bunch without Blistering.

For Man it is now known to be one of the best, if not the best, Liniments ever discovered.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE

Is the only positive cure known, and to show what this remedy will do, we give here as a sample of cases cured by it a statement which was GIVEN UNDER OATH!

To Whom it may Concern: In 1875 I treated with Kendall's Spavin Cure a horse spavin of several months' growth, nearly half as large as a hen's egg, and completely stopped the lameness and removed the enlargement. I have worked the horse ever since very hard, and he has never been lame, nor could I ever see any difference in the size of the hock joints since I treated them with Kendall's Spavin Cure. E. A. GAINES.

Sworn and subscribed to before me this 25th day of Feb., A.D. 1879.

JOHN G. JENNE,
Justice of the Peace.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

ON HUMAN FLESH it has been ascertained by repeated trials to be the very best Liniment ever used for any deep-seated pain of long standing, or of short duration. Also for CORNS, BUNIONS, FROST-BITES or any bruise, cut or laceration. Some are afraid to use it on human flesh simply because it is a horse medicine, but you should remember that what is good for BEAST is good for MAN, and we know from experience that KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE can be used on a child one year old with perfect safety. Its effects are wonderful on human flesh and it does not blister or make a sore. Try it and be convinced.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE

Read below of its wonderful effects as a liniment for the human family:

HENNOTITE, Mo., Aug. 26, 1880.
R. J. KENDALL & Co.: GENTS: I am so overjoyed in view of the result of an application of your Kendall's Spavin Cure that I feel that I ought to humanize it by publishing it to the world. About thirty-five years ago, while riding a young ugly horse, I was injured in one of my testicles, and from that time to three weeks ago a slow but constant enlargement has been the result, giving me a great amount of trouble, almost entirely preventing me from horseback riding, which was my usual way of traveling. I saw a notice of your Kendall's Spavin Cure; never once thought of it for anything except for horses, but after receiving the medicine and reading over what it was good for, feeling terribly exercised about not getting any difficulty, for I had consulted many physicians and none gave me any specific but when it could be endured no longer to remove it with the knife. I applied your Kendall's Spavin Cure as an experiment, and it was so painful in its application that I concluded not to repeat it, and thought no more about it until near a week, and lo and behold one-half of the size was gone. With joy I could hardly believe it. I immediately applied it again, and have made in all about one-half dozen applications, running over a space of two weeks, and the terrible enlargement is almost entirely gone, in view of which I cannot express my feelings of delight. It has been a Godsend to me; may He send to others with like troubles. JOHN RICE,
Pastor of Hematite Congregational Church.

P. S.—You are at liberty to put this in any shape you may please. I am not ashamed to have my name under, over or by the side of it.

An Eyestone's Journey.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., June 10.—Five or six years ago Rufus Miller, a well-known farmer of Mechanicsville, near the city, just before retiring placed in his eye what is known as an eyestone. The next morning, as the stone did not drop from his eye, he supposed that it had dropped out while he was asleep. He searched everywhere about his bedchamber, but could not find it. Several weeks ago he discovered a hard lump on the end of the little finger of his right hand. His friends told him that it was a wart, and advised him to let it alone. About a week ago it became painful, and he began picking it. He soon saw that there was a hard substance under the skin, and by continuous picking he produced his long-lost eyestone. Mr. Miller examined the stone so carefully that there can be no mistake. He recollects that some months ago he experienced an aching in his right wrist, and it is supposed that the stone was then moving toward the end of the finger. It is a mystery how this little bit of carbonate of lime made that journey through Miller's system without being absorbed.

Quebec in Flames.

QUEBEC, June 10.—One of the most disastrous fires with which this unfortunate city has been afflicted commenced last night, and was only got under control at 6 o'clock this morning. The fire originated in a stable at the corner of St. Oliver and St. Claire streets at ten minutes before eleven o'clock. A few minutes later the fire bells rang out a second alarm, and the whole force of the brigade was soon upon the ground. The reflection of the flames was so brilliant that in a short time half the city appeared attracted to the scene, and by half-past 11 all the avenues leading to the fire were so completely packed with people that it was next to impossible to force a way through them. Over eight hundred houses were destroyed, rendering homeless fifteen hundred people. The loss is estimated at $3,000,000.

A Cyclone in Kansas.

ABILENE, Kan., June 12.—A storm, accompanied by rain and hail, struck the Solomon Valley Friday evening at 5 o'clock. At Beloit a great deal of glass was broken out of the windows, but the fury of the cyclone was greatest at Solomon City, where nearly all the glass was broken from the north windows, and a number of houses destroyed, but no lives were lost. Four miles northwest Dennis Morgan and his sister were instantly killed and their house totally destroyed. At Bennington, on the valley road, twelve miles northwest of Solomon City, a farmer named Frothingham, his wife, and hired man were killed and the house completely demolished. In the same vicinity three stone farm houses were blown down, but the inmates were in the cellars, and escaped without serious injuries. A large number of houses and barns along the valley between Solomon City and Minneapolis, a distance of twenty miles or more, were blown down.

Hailstones came down very thickly, and some of them were larger than walnuts, and contained in the centre small pebbles. The cyclone did not extend so far east as Abilene, but rain and hail came down for about twenty minutes at a lively rate, and the damage to window glass is considerable.

Damage from the Storm.

ST. LOUIS, June 13.—Additional particulars of the tornado in Kansas, last Thursday, state that the storm extended into Lyon County, and did great damage to crops, buildings, fences, etc., all over that part of the country.

The town of Americus, near Emporia, is almost entirely destroyed, every building in it being more or less damaged. United Presbyterian Church was literally torn to pieces, and the Methodist Church was blown from its foundation and almost totally destroyed.

Several houses in Emporia were blown down, and fences and other property seriously injured. The north and east additions to the State Normal School were unroofed, and the walls partly torn down.

The wheat, just ready for harvest, and other crops everywhere in the track of the storm were either blown away or beaten into the ground by the hail, a great quantity of which fell during the storm.

Southwestern Missouri seems to have been visited by the same storm. The wind was not severe, but hailstones of immense size fell over a large area of country, and did great damage to crops and window-glass. A waterspout broke in a little valley, in Barry County, in which is situated the town of Seven Star Spring. Before the people could reach the surrounding hills a torrent of water rushed down, taking with it houses, tents, household goods and animals belonging to those living near the springs. Three women, a man and seven small children were swept away by the flood, but fortunately they all lodged in bushes, and were rescued some hours later.

Killed in a Drunken Quarrel.

FREMONT, Neb., June 12.—Councilman Patrick Hanlon was shot through the head by a stranger named Bradley Friday night, from the effects of which he died this morning. In company with another man they were passing down the street, somewhat under the influence of liquor, when they quarreled and an exchange of shots occurred. After the shooting Bradley disappeared and was not found until this morning. He declares that he fired in self-defense, and the evidence before the coroner's jury to-day showed that Hanlon fired the first shot. One chamber of his revolver was empty and the weapon was cocked for a second shot.

Struck by a Whirlwind.

HAVANA, June 11.—The Spanish steamer Carolina, which arrived to-day, brought the crew of the schooner Isabel, Captain Miller, from New York, May 25, with general cargo for Palmar, Jamaica, and Sa Blas, Columbia. The Isabel was struck by a whirlwind on the 4th inst., and capsized, filling immediately. The steward was drowned. The rigging was cut away, but the vessel did not right. After remaining five hours the crew took to the boat and left the neighborhood of the wreck at noon on the following day. On the day after they were picked up by the Carolina.

Success of Refunding.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—The Controller of the Currency reports that he has received from the Secretary of the Treasury papers representing five per cent bonds, belonging to 720 banks, and amounting to $103,493,350, which bonds have been continued into three and a half per cents. The whole number of banks authorized to continue by the Secretary is 1,348, and all the papers representing these bonds have been received by the Controller from the Secretary except those representing $65,910,600. The number of withdrawals of five per cents for continuance received from the Treasurer by the Controller is 222, and the amount of such withdrawals $52,079,500. All of the cases representing six per cent bonds, amounting to $45,000,000, have been received by the Controller from the Secretary, except four.

Quebec After the Fire.

QUEBEC, June 13.—At a meeting of the Relief Committee yesterday, collectors were appointed for the different parts of the city. Donations from individuals and from Canadian towns are coming in, and expressions of sympathy are being received from every direction. Chas. Marois, the last of the victims of the fire, was buried to-day in Belmont cemetery. The inquest will be resumed Monday. The street railroad has been completed, and cars are now running over its entire length. There is a very large number of dangerous walls and chimneys standing throughout the burned district, which require immediate attention. It is dangerous now to pass not only along the narrow side streets but even in some places along John-st. Numbers of people are preparing to rebuild. The work of rebuilding St. John's Church is to be immediately begun.

Gunpowder Discovered in a Mould.

CHICAGO, June 13.—A plot to kill L. A. Fleure and F. A. Sessions, two moulders in the Chicago Stove Works, last night, was discovered just in time to save their lives and probably the lives of a dozen or more of their fellow-workmen. Just as they were about to pour the molten iron into one of the moulds, one of them saw that it had been tampered with, and investigation showed that two pounds of gunpowder had been hidden in the mould. But for the discovery the molten metal would have been blown over all the men in the foundry. The plot is supposed to have been laid by striking moulders who have been hanging around the place for months.

Almost a Wife Murder.

NEW YORK, June 13.—Charles Williams, a negro, of No. 230 East Twenty-Second-st., left his wife, Francis, three weeks ago and refused to support her. He has threatened her life, and she set a trap for him in which he was caught last night. By means of decoy letters she persuaded him to meet her at Thirty-first-st. and Third-ave., and had a policeman ready to arrest him. The precaution was needed, for hardly had the negro seen his wife when he sprang upon her and attempted to cut her throat. The officer interfered in time to prevent the murder, and the negro was locked up in the Twenty-first Precinct Police Station.

Stage and Mail Robbery.

GALVESTON, Tex., June 11.—A special to the News from Gainesville, this State says: "On the night of June 3 a stage of the Overland Transportation Company, while passing through Black Hollow, thirteen miles from here, was robbed by masked men, who obtained a small amount of money from the passengers and $1,000 from the mails. Thursday W. E. Smith, Mail Agent, arrested W. Brown, a well-known Scotchman, at Morague, in Montague County. He is believed to be one of the guilty men.

Ten Men Killed in an Encounter.

CINCINNATI, June 13.—A special from San Antonio, Texas, reports ten men killed in the southwest in a fight between rangers and a band of cow thieves. There are no details.

Shot by his Brother.

From the Springfield Republican.
Charles D. Kidder, the well-known commercial traveller and young Democratic politician, was shot and almost instantly killed on the sidewalk in front of his Carew street house last evening by his 17-year-old brother, Dwight Kidder. The shooting was the result of a quarrel which had been going on between the brothers for two or three days. It seems that their father, Dwight Kidder, who is a cutter for Haines & Co's tailoring department, has been sick for a long time, and that he rode out two or three days since. Hearing of this his son Charles, who lived at the opposite end of the brick block from the father, said that the family should not have allowed such a thing. Young Dwight Kidder, who lived with his father, took offence at the criticism, and also took his brother to task for it. During the afternoon yesterday the older brother was occupied in writing to the Boston dry goods firm of Libby & Clark, who employed him, and in the evening he went down to the depot to mail his letters.

He knew that his brother was getting greatly excited, and hesitated some about going out for fear of a collision with him, but finally concluded to do so. Meanwhile the boy kept coming to his brother's door to talk about the trouble. After C. D. Kidder had returned from the depot Dwight came again and rang the bell. Charles who was down stairs, proposed to his wife, who was in the second story, that she open the door but she did not seem to think it was worth while for her to come down stairs for the sake of doing it, so he did it himself. Dwight stood on the steps and asked if Charles had said that their father should not have been allowed to go down street. Charles answered that he did say so and that he would not take it back. Hot words ensued between both for a short time, then Charles told Dwight that he must go away and stop calling him such names. During their conversation both brothers got out on the sidewalk and an altercation occurred. Dwight at once pulled out a pistol and shot Charles, the ball passing through the deltoid muscle into the base of the heart. Charles staggered into the house, through the hall, and into a bedroom crying, "I'm dead, I'm dead." His wife had seen the shooting scene while standing in the door, but was unable to interfere. When Charles reached the bedroom he called out to the servant girl, "Nora, help me." He was helped on the bed, and died about five minutes after the shot was fired.

Dr. Foster was summoned by telephone, but Kidder had been dead some time before he arrived. As soon as Dwight had fired the shot he ran around the back side of the block to his home and into the attic, shortly after letting his mother know that he was in the house. In some way Dr. Foster found that he was in the house, and advised him to give himself up to the police without delay. Consequently he and his mother started for the station after the lapse of some time, and although she soon turned back because of the pelting rain, he went on alone, delivering himself to Marshal Blair about 1 o'clock. The condition of the father is so precarious that an attempt will be made to keep all knowledge of the affair from him. The mother is also in feeble health, as is also Mrs. C. D. Kidder, and it is impossible to predict what results will follow in the wake of this horrible affair. Young Dwight Kidder has one remaining brother, about 10 years old. The man who was killed had no children.

Electing a New President.

W. W. CORCORAN AT THE HEAD OF THE WASHINGTON AND LEE UNIVERSITY. JAMES MILLIKEN, OF BELLEFONTE, MADE A MEMBER OF THE CENTENNIAL ORGANIZATION.

A meeting of the Centennial organization for the better endowment of the Washington and Lee University, met at Philadelphia on Wednesday afternoon, June 8, for the purpose of filling a vacancy in the office of President, caused by the death of Hon. Morton McMichael, and of Vice-President, caused by the death of the Hon. A. E. Borie. The meeting was held in select council chamber, and Franklin Gowen occupied the chair. Among those present were the Hon. George H. Boker, Gen. Robert D. Lilly, Col. John W. Forney, the Hon. S. J. Randall, the Hon. Benjamin A. Willis, of New York; G. Watson James, editor of the Richmond Standard, and Senator Jones, of Florida, and others. The Hon. Samuel J. Randall was chosen as permanent Chairman. On taking the chair he referred at some length to the history of the institution down to the present time. Resolutions deploring the deaths of Morton McMichael, Henry C. Carey, Adolph E. Borie, and Thomas A. Scott were passed, and addresses were made by many of those present. Mr. W. W. Harding moved that the following gentlemen be made members of the organization: H. H. Houston, Vincent S. Bradford, John Welsh, and J. Price Wetherill, Philadelphia; James Milliken, Bellefonte Penn.; J. D. Cameron, Harrisburg; J. J. Astor, F. O. French, August Belmont, Col. L. M. Lawson, Benjamin A. Willis, the Rev. Morgan Dix, William Murnin, Francis R. Rives, John C. Latham, James Wilson, and William R. Garrison, New York; Col. Huston Church, Savannah, Ga.; Edwin Harrison, St. Louis. They were unanimously elected.

Col. Forney nominated W. W. Corcoran, of Washington, as President of the association. After a speech by Col. Forney, the motion was agreed to. H. H. Houston, of Philadelphia, was chosen Vice-President. Col. Forney then offered the following gentlemen for the Advisory Board: F. O. French, New York; Edwin Harrison, St. Louis, and for the Executive Committee, James Wilson, of New York. They were elected, and the meeting adjourned.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS.

—PERUNA had a remarkably good effect on my daughter's paralysis. W. E. DUNCAN, Sewickly.

—Users will find at Sechler's, at all times, a full supply of choice smoking and chewing tobaccos—a pure article, always fresh.

—Pure, unadulterated family sugars at Sechler's. Also teas, coffees, spices, molasses and syrups, of the same quality, fresh and full of strength.

—"Wouldn't be without them," is what everybody says of the celebrated Boston baked beans, for sale at Sechler's. Put up in cans and shipped direct from the Hub.

—At the meeting of the Centennial organization in Philadelphia, on Wednesday of last week, for the better endowment of the Washington and Lee University, James Milliken, Esq., now in Europe, was unanimously elected a member of the organization.

—Food made from Sechler's groceries is substantial, and contain no impurities to provoke sickness. Thousands will testify to this. There is no question about it. Sechler's is the place to go for prime groceries, and there's where you get your money's worth.

—A squad of carpenters and blacksmiths threw up their positions in the Huntington car works last week and came to Bellefonte to seek employment in the works here. We did not hear whether they were successful or not, but probably were, as the shops are running over time and short of help.

—The Dunkirk Mining Company, operating at Loveville, have finished laying their water pipes from the dam to the bank, a distance of about fifteen hundred feet. Mr. Wilbur Twitmore, of this place, was the contractor. Under the careful supervision of Mr. Daniel Rhoads, the President, the work is progressing finely.

—The world continues to move and Harry Green continues to sell the best cigar, low or high-priced, to be had in this region. In a conversation with Harry we were pleased to learn that his business is steadily improving and the number of his customers increasing rapidly. This is not strange, though. Harry is a pleasant, accommodating young gentleman, and sells an honest article. These are sufficient inducements to attract the millions.

—A serious difference has arisen between Count Corti, the Italian Ambassador at Constantinople, and the Porte, arising out of the disappearance of a young Italian lady, who is said to have entered a Turkish harem and gone over to Islam. Count Corti has imperatively demanded her surrender, and has, it is stated, declared that if the Porte persists in its refusal to order that she shall be restored he will break off all personal intercourse with Assim Pasha.

Perhaps, if the Count fails to unearth the young lady in Constantinople, he had better take a look into Sechler's grocery establishment in Bellefonte. Possibly the lady has been attracted thither by the fame of the goods sold at this store, and if so she's not to be blamed. Everybody wants them, because purity and freshness in groceries lead to long life, and these two qualities are found in Sechler's groceries.

Action of the Flood.

The rains of last week created disastrous floods at Lock Haven, Williamsport and in the Clearfield region.

Curwensville had a six-foot flood on Friday, two feet more of water than was ever known before. All the pocket booms at that point and a number of rafts anchored to piers, were swept away.

At Lock Haven the coffer dam broke, a part of the structure being carried away. A good many rafts went over the dam and were badly broken up, and the logs scattered.

At Williamsport on Friday morning the river was thirteen feet above low water mark. A break in the boom occurred, allowing a large number of logs to escape.

The Gazette & Bulletin says "the loss of logs on Thursday from the boom is estimated at 20,000,000 feet, not more than 8,000,000 feet of which were caught in the lower boom. Messrs. John White, Munson, Howard, Perley & Howard, E. L. Piper & Sons, and Readings were all heavy losers. Some of the lost logs were among the best that came down this season."

On Saturday the water began falling at Lock Haven and other points where the flood had been most destructive. The Journal of Saturday says: The water is falling rapidly, and all danger is past. The damage to our lumbermen cannot now be estimated, but the loss is large. It was reported last night that logs were being stopped at the Dry Valley boom, above Northumberland.

The New Road to the West.

The much-talked about through line of railroad from New York to the West, which, according to the survey, will pass through Milton, seems to be assuming tangible shape. The Philadelphia Times, of Thursday, says:

"The agreement between President Roberts, of the Pennsylvania Railroad Co., and Jay Gould, by which the latter's through line to the West by way of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, the Philadelphia & Erie division of the Penn'a railroad, and the Allegheny Valley Railway, was ratified by the directors of the Pennsylvania railroad at a meeting yesterday. The Central Railroad of New Jersey will be used from Jersey City to a point near Milton, Pa., thence over the Philadelphia and Erie railroad to Driftwood, where it strikes the Allegheny Valley line, and then along the latter route to Red Bank. From this point a new road will be built to Youngstown, Ohio, where connection will be made with the Wash lines, which diverge to different points in the Southwest and as far West as Kansas City. As the new lines do not touch Pittsburgh it will not interfere with the Pennsylvania traffic. The latter agrees to take the traffic at Milton and carry it over its line to Red Bank, furnishing the motive power and receiving its pro rata share of whatever freight is carried. The agreement will be submitted to the Gould management for approval."

Proposed History of Centre and Clinton Counties.

Mr. D. Schwartz, representing the well known publisher of historical works, Mr. L. H. Everts, of Philadelphia, is in town collecting statistics in regard to the proposed history of Centre and Clinton counties. We have examined a specimen copy of a similar work which it is proposed to imitate, and we have no doubt but that it will be a very valuable and useful publication. Among other topics of interest, the following will receive special treatment:

Indian Occupation.—Indians and Incidents of the Indian Wars.

Early Settlement.—First Settlers.—Hardships and Adventures of the Pioneers, etc.

Civil List.—Citizens of the county in Nation, State and County offices.

Civil Organization.—Organization of the County and Towns, the Courts, etc.

The Learned Professions.—The Bench and Bar, Medical Profession, etc.

Educational and Religious.—The Schools and Churches.

Internal Improvements.—Roads, Canals, Railroads, etc.

Manufacturing Interests.

Agricultural and Mineral Resources.

The Press.

Societies.—Social, Secret and Benevolent.

Independent and separate histories of each township, city and borough.

Military History, including the late Rebellion, with rosters.

A special feature of this work will be its township and borough histories, to which a separate place will be assigned.

Additional Railroad Facilities, via Phila. & Erie Railroad.

On and after Monday, June 13th, Niagara Express, leaving Philadelphia at 9 a. m., Washington 8.07 a. m., and Baltimore 9.20 a. m., will commence running through to Kane, arriving there at 10 p. m. Supper will be served at Renovo. Returning from Kane, the train will start at 6 a. m., and pass through Williamsport at 12.20 p. m., as usual, as the Day Express, arriving in Philadelphia 6.45 p. m., New York 9.30 p. m., Baltimore 6.35 p. m., Washington 7.52 p. m.

These trains will connect at Driftwood with trains on the Allegheny Valley railroad. A train will also leave Kane at 6.30 in the morning for Erie, and connect at Corry for Chautauqua Lake. Returning from Erie, the train will leave at 4 p. m. and arrive at Kane at 9.10 p. m., and remain over night. This arrangement will not only be a great accommodation to the traveling public, but will particularly benefit pleasure seekers and those desiring to reach that attractive summer resort at the Thompson House, Kane. Through passengers will find a great advantage in being able to run up to Kane in the evening, remain over night and then pursue their journey to Erie next morning, passing down the western slope of the mountains and across the Allegheny river during the pleasant part of the day. The Thompson House at Kane will be opened for visitors on the 15th of June. It is needless to say, because it is well known, that there is no more delightful place of resort in the Allegheny Mountains than Kane, and this fine hotel will be put in first class condition for pleasure seekers. The principal attractions at Kane are the purity of the atmosphere and water, and the delightful coolness which prevails when the heat is oppressive in the lowlands. It is over 2,200 feet above the ocean level. The Pennsylvania Railroad Company has made extensive arrangements for summer travel, and excursion tickets to all places of resort are now on sale at all principal offices.

Prince Napoleon's Boot-Maker.

A diverting story, humorously illustrative of Prince Jerome Bonaparte's proverbial thriftiness, has recently gone the round of the Parisian newspaper. It appears that during the latter part of his cousin's reign the Prince became dissatisfied with his boot-maker and formally withdrew his custom from that artist, who continued, nevertheless, to ornament the front of his shop with the attractive inscription, "Purveyor to his Imperial Highness, the Prince Napoleon." Noticing this delusive announcement one day, as he drove past the shop Prince Jerome sent a member of his household to the boot-maker with positive orders that the inscription should be forthwith removed. As, however, he subsequently found that his commands had been disregarded, he took legal proceedings against the boot-maker for unlawful and mendacious advertisement of his (the Prince's) patronage. The defendant's counsel, in the course of his pleadings, endeavored in the following ingenious manner to show cause why his client should not be compelled to withdraw the offending inscription, arguing that such a decision on the part of the court would infallibly result in serious prejudice and loss to the boot-maker. "For," he observed, "hitherto passers-by whose attention was attracted by the announcement in question stopped, entered the shop, and bought boots freely of my client. And why did they so? Because they had already said to themselves, 'Prince Napoleon's boot-maker! That must be a good workman, and an uncommonly cheap one into the bargain. We will give him a trial.' If you force him to remove his inscription, the peripatetic public will certainly infer that he must have raised his prices, and will hurry past his shop with averted eyes." The boot-maker, it need scarcely be added, was cast, but one cannot help regretting that so humorous a plea should have been disallowed by a French tribunal.—London Telegraph.

DR. DOREMUS has discovered that elephants' milk is the richest lacteal fluid extant. It will be in order now for ice cream manufacturers to lay in a stock of the milk elephants, and of course the creameries in the adjacent counties will be clamorous for a few of the unwieldy brutes. There is likely to be a big boom in elephants.

BELLEFONTE, PA.

EDWARD T. TUTEN.

SUMMARY OF THE NEWS.

From Washington.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—The star route rogues are all alarmed. They are trying every underhand method to get the "dogs of war" withdrawn from their trail, but it is impossible. It is said they have plenty of money to hush up matters if it could be done, but it cannot. The administration is pledged to unearth this fraud, and the lightning will wither many a reputation that was hitherto good. It is said they offered a heavy sum to buy off, but it failed.

Secretary Blaine does not fret much over the assaults made upon him. He evidently feels that he can afford to be quiet and let the boomerangs aimed at him return to damage the throwers. His health is better now than it has been for many months.

FIGHTING FRENCH.

The fight for the removal of Assistant Secretary French is growing very strong. The pressure is so heavy that it does seem as if he must eventually go. He holds on with great pertinacity, however, and his experience in the office is something in his favor. The people who are opposed to him, however, represent the "solid element," and they will make it a warm fight before it is ended.

HIEING TO THE SUMMER RESORTS.

Washington is not a particularly pleasant place as a summer resort, and people who can leave are off on their summer saunterings. The President will soon take up his abode for the warm season at the Soldiers' Home. All the officials who can leave are off, and many of the subordinates, so that the capital has settled down to the dullness which always characterizes it when Congress is not in session.

To England in an Open Boat.

NEW YORK, June 7.—Messrs Benjamin Radford and Charles Moore are in this city, superintending the building of a boat in which they expect to cross the ocean, leaving New York for London about the 18th inst. The boat's dimensions are 19 feet keel, 20 feet over all, 5 feet beam, and of 13 inches draft. This diminutive craft will carry three tons, including two men, provision and twelve sails. She is to be rigged brig fashion, but will be provided with three oars, and will carry canned provisions for forty days in her lockers. The hardy mariners say they expect to reach London in thirty or thirty-five days after starting. In London the craft will be exhibited at the Crystal Palace. Mr. Radford is an Englishman and says he has been making $3 a day as assistant foreman on the Brooklyn bridge.

The Riots in Ireland.

DUBLIN, June 8.—The report that Father Murphy, of Skull, had been arrested proves unfounded. The report, however, threw the people into violent ferment. Thousands of men and women crowded into the village of Skull, wrecked the police station and postoffice, tore down the telegraph wires, and cut up portion of the road. The excitement was taken up by the people of Skibbereen and at last accounts they were engaged in a fearful riot. They wrecked the house of a car owner who had supplied cars to the police. Their indignation became unbounded when they discovered that a special train with three hundred military had been sent from Cork, and they tore down the telegraph wires to Ballydeob. Skull is reported inaccessible by ordinary roads which are broken up and bridges pulled down. Five hundred foot soldiers, twenty dragoons and seventy service corps men, with one gun, have been sent to the scene from the west. Father Murphy has given no definite information of his arrest to the public, fearing a collision with the police. The grounds for suspecting he is under arrest are, according to Skibbereen correspondent, very strong. He was seen with the police several times on Monday, when a document of some kind was handed him. A force has been sent into the distressed district fully provisioned for a month.

Great preparations are making for the reception of Archbishop Crode in Tipperary on Thursday.

The Gazette proclaims the prohibition of the meeting at Mullingar on the ground that it is intended for the obstructing of the execution of writs. Kings county is proclaimed under the provisions of the arms act, and three more baronies in county Meath are under the coercion act.

The Land League reports fourteen hundred pounds received from the United States since the previous meeting.

New Hampshire Senator.

CONCORD, June 8.—Indications rather point to the non-election of a United States Senator by the present Legislature, though the matter is not yet determined. The leading candidates for nomination, excepting Senator Rollins, oppose an election. It is understood ex-Governor Harriman opposes the election, arguing that the law is against it, and Congress has refused to pass an act giving the Legislature the right to elect. Rollins claims the election constitutional, and that his view is sustained by the opinions of eminent Senators. Gen. Stephens, Gen. Marston and Wm. Chandler are understood to oppose it. A Republican caucus to consider the question will be held to-day.

Shocking Tragedy.

PITTSBURGH, June 8.—A shocking tragedy, which resulted in the death of one person and the serious wounding of another, occurred at Edgewood, a little village on the Pennsylvania railroad, just outside the city limits, Tuesday afternoon. Wm. C. Murphy, who had been divorced from his former wife for ten years, went out to see her, and after a conversation of about an hour got up to leave her, apparently with the kindest feelings, but just as he was to shake hands with her at parting, drew a revolver and shot her. Fortunately the ball did not penetrate a vital part, but he supposed he had killed her, as she fell, and immediately shot himself twice in the head, inflicting wounds from which he died in a few hours.

Misplaced Confidence.

ALTON, Ill., June 8.—Harry Thomelson, agent for the firm of Graley, Ingrem & Co., grain merchants, absconded yesterday with $10,000 of the firm's money. Thomelson is quite good looking, and enjoyed the confidence of his employers. His father, who is in comfortable circumstances, will probably make good all losses. No clue to his whereabouts can be obtained, although a warrant for his arrest has been issued.

Attacked by Circus Roughs.

EAST SAGINAW, Mich., June 8.—At a late hour last night a gang of roughs attached to Hillard & Demott's circus made a descent upon a crowd of people assembled at a bowery dance, at the village of Chasaberry, and commenced an attack, armed with clubs. Augustus Emery, a policeman, was pounded to death, Fred. Wenzel was fatally injured, J. B. Griswold, Village President, was severely bruised, Charles Homer received a pistol ball in the side of the face, and a dozen others were cut and bruised up. Five of the gang were arrested and with difficulty the people were restrained from lynching them.

Gen. Grant at St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, June 8.—General Grant and party arrived here this morning from New Orleans, and his quarters at the Southern Hotel have been besieged all day by callers. The General says though his Japanese servant boy left behind at Chicago the badges and medals recently recovered at Texarkana, he has no idea how they came in the hands of King and Fitzpatrick, the men now under arrest for stealing them, and although he is very anxious to go to New York at once he will remain here if it is deemed necessary to prosecute the parties. He declined to talk about politics.

Burglars at Mercer.

MERCER, Pa., June 8.—Three disguised men entered the house of Mary Amberson, a widow living in the suburbs of Mercer, last night about 12 o'clock, and after assaulting Mrs. Amberson and her son, a boy about twelve years old, attempted to plunder the house. However, the boy getting away from them alarmed the neighbors, and the burglars escaped.

A "Miracle" Worker Stopped.

ERIE, Pa., June 8.—Detectives to-day arrested Rev. Father Maloney, who professed to perform miracles. He is charged with fraud.

A Big Haul of Bonds.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 8.—A robbery of between $90,000 and $100,000 of bonds from the Erie County Savings Bank has just come to light. The bonds were carelessly laid on the Treasurer's desk after a number of coupons had been cut from them, and were stolen.

The Legislature.

HARRISBURG, June 9.—Governor Hoyt yesterday signed the Pilotage Bill which has caused so much contention between shippers and pilots at Philadelphia. Among bills finally passed yesterday was one giving husbands, wives, and fathers the right of possession of the bodies of their deceased wives, husbands and children. The Warren Insane Hospital bill was defeated. The bill to compel the regular payment of wages, on or before the fifteenth of each month to laborers wherever employed in the State was also defeated.

The Schull Riot Ended.

DUBLIN, June 9.—A serious riot has just ended at Schull, caused by a report that Father Murphy had been arrested under the coercion act. A large military force has been sent to the spot provisioned for a month.

A Dog's Battle with a Porcupine.

CHICHESTER, Ulster Co., N. Y., June 10.—There was a porcupine hunt on the mountains near here on Saturday night. Men and dogs were engaged in it, and one of the dogs came out of the battle with his jaws filled with porcupine quills, some of them six inches in length. The porcupine was killed, and it weighed fifty pounds. The dog was in a pitiful condition. The porcupine quills had been thrust into almost every part of the jaw, and four of them were jabbed into the roof of the dog's mouth, the butt ends being just visible. Many of the quills were pulled out with the fingers, one of the hunters holding the animal's head between his legs while another performed the operation. To pull the quills out of the roof of the mouth, the owner of the dog took the animal to the chair factory, and placing its head in a wooden vise, screwed up just hard enough to hold it, plucked the quills out one by one with a pair of nippers, the dog howling with pain during the operation.

The Legislature Winds Up.

HARRISBURG, June 10.—The show is over. The curtain has rung down, and the actors have retired from the public gaze. The usual display of red-fire took place yesterday morning. Presents were made with fulsome speeches and a resolution rushed through endorsing the Speaker. No chance was given members to vote no. "All in favor vote aye," Colborn called out. A feeble chorus of "ayes" followed and he immediately declared it carried, without giving anybody a chance to vote "no."

Army Reunion.

HARTFORD (Conn.) Exchange. The parade and demonstration in honor of the veteran soldiers of the Army of the Potomac brought immense crowds to this city on Wednesday. All the public buildings were handsomely decorated. The procession formed at the capital about noon. Secretary of War Lincoln, General Sherman, Governor Littlefield, of Rhode Island, Governor Hoyt, of Pennsylvania, and Governor Plaisted, of Maine, and other guests were in the third division in carriages. Generals Burnside, Wright, Franklin and Davenport marched in the ranks. The citizens along the route were very enthusiastic. Many of the army corps associations held special meetings and elected officers.

THE CEREMONIES.

Public exercises in the afternoon were held at the Opera House, which was densely crowded. The body of the house was occupied by the veteran soldiers and guests, and the galleries by citizens, including many ladies. Over the stage was a representation of a military camp, with tents, galling guns, flags, etc. The proceedings were opened with an address by Mayor Bulkeley, which was briefly responded to by General H. G. Wright, president of the society. A poem was read by Colonel S. D. Sumner. The oration by Daniel Dougherty, of Philadelphia, was received with frequent enthusiastic applause.

ORATION OF DANIEL DOUGHERTY.

After referring to the success through which the Army of the Potomac had passed, the speaker reviewed the situation of both factions previous to the breaking out of the civil war, and drew a forcible picture of the condition of our own country as well as of Europe. He claimed that representative government dated from the American Revolution, and had it been proven to be incapable of self-preservation, free institutions would have been known no more. Speaking of the close of the war, he said: "In a few moments all that was left of the opposing forces, victor and vanquished, officers and privates, returned to their homes, dotted their uniforms, furled their battle-flags, and passed from the reality to the realms of history. Vulcan, the swarthy god, with ponderous axe, hurled a blow full at the brow of Jove. From the cleft brain of the king of gods leapt forth Minerva. So from the civil war rises our Republic, nobler far, and mightier, than before." Mr. Dougherty concluded his oration by picturing in glowing terms the present condition of the whole country, and spoke a word of caution as to the future, and of the danger in trusting to the extent of domination, population, invincibility in arms, unbounded wealth or prosperity, and peace alone, for the preservation of our liberty in the future; but "truth and justice, obedience to authority, reverence for law, purity of the ballot, enlightened discussion, the punishment of corruptionists, a jealous watchfulness of the encroachment of power, exalted statesmanship, and a firm reliance on God—these are the fortifications that will render our Republic impregnable. With these she may fight with her glory a thousand years! Abandon them, and she will survive but a few generations."

After the oration, brief speeches were made by General W. T. Sherman, Secretary Lincoln, Generals Burnside, Franklin, Hawley, Sickles, Devens and Slocum, and Governor Bigelow, of Connecticut.

Pennsylvania Pickings.

Potato bugs are thick in Lehigh county.

The new oil refinery at Beaver is ready to commence operations. The Titusville Oil Exchange has subscribed $3,000 for the Drake monument.

The nickel mines near Christiansburg, Lancaster county, are giving work to 200 hands.

The Monongahela City paper mills, which have been idle for some time, will start up.

The army worm is causing destruction among the grass fields in Berks county.

Twelve men have been put to work in the alleged gold mines near Newmans town, Lebanon county.

Henry and Frank Rumberger, convicted at Harrisburg of the murder of Daniel Troutman, are to have a new trial.

A Franklin servant girl made an attempt to poison an entire family recently because she was severely reprimanded by her mistress.

John Coyle, who shot and killed Emily Coyle, at Coyle's Ferry, York county, because she would not marry him, has set up the plea of insanity.

Mr. John Butler, of Trough Creek Valley, Huntingdon county, had a terrible fight the other day with a gray eagle. He captured the bird alive.

P. G. Cooper, a resident of Pittston, has in his possession a Catholic prayer-book which has been in his family for three hundred and sixty-eight years.

The grand jury of Luzerne county has found true bills of indictment against B. J. Gethings, of Pittston, a wealthy retired merchant, for indecent assault upon two little girls.

Peter Herdic, of coach fame, has charged Judge Kelley and General Sichel, of Philadelphia, with fraud in connection with the recent failure of the Herdic Transportation Company.

The split in the senior class of Lafayette College seems to be beyond healing. It seems evident that if the class exercises are held at all at commencement time only part of the class will participate.

The first State Convention of the Constitutional Amendment Association (temperance) of Pennsylvania will be held in the Union Hall, Johnstown, on Tuesday and Wednesday, June 28 and 29. Hon. Daniel Agnew is the President of the Association.

Famous Men of Muscle.

Among the Greeks the successful athlete was crowned with laurels and loaded down with wealth and honor.

Milo six times won the palm at both the Olympic and Pythian games. He is said to have run a mile with a four year old ox upon his shoulders, and afterward killed the animal with one blow of his fist, and ate the entire carcass in one day. So great was his muscular power that he would bind a cord around his head and break it by the swelling pressure of the veins. An ordinary meal for Milo was twenty pounds of meat, as much bread and fifteen pints of wine.

Polydamus, of Thessalia, was of colossal height and prodigious strength, and it is said alone and without weapons killed an enormous enraged lion. One day, it is recorded, he seized a bull by his hind feet and the animal escaped only by leaving the hoof in the grasp of the athlete.

The Roman Emperor Maximinus was upward of eight feet in height, and like Milo of Crotona, could squeeze to powder the hardest stone with his fingers and break the leg of a horse by a kick.

While a prisoner in Germany Richard I. accepted an invitation to a boxing-match with the son of his jailer. He received the first blow which made him stagger, but recovering, with a blow of his fist he killed his antagonist on the spot.

Topham, an Englishman, born in 1710, was possessed of astonishing strength. His arms, hollow in the case of ordinary men, were with him full of muscle and tendons. He would take a bar of iron, with its two ends held in his hands, place the middle of the bar behind his neck, and bend the extremities by main force until they met together, and then bend back the iron straight again.

The famous Sanderbeg, King of Albania, who was born in 1414, was a man of great stature, and his feats of sword exercise have never been equaled. On one occasion, with his cimeter, he struck his antagonist such a blow that its force cleaved him to the waist.

Maurice, Count of Saxony, was especially noted for the surprising muscular power of his hands. On one occasion, needing a corkscrew, he twisted a large iron nail into the required shape with his fingers and opened half a dozen bottles of wine with it. Another time he picked up a number of horse-shoes and with his hands snapped them in two as readily as if made of glass.

If history is to be believed, Phatylus, of Crotona, could jump a distance of fifty-six feet.

Strutt, an English authority on games and amusements, speaks of a Yorkshire jumper named Ireland whose powers were marvelous. He was six feet high, and at the age of eighteen leaped, without the aid of a spring-board, over nine horses ranged side by side.

Fodder Up.

He gave the hackmen at the Union depot a stand off, brushed the boot-blacks right and left, and shouldered his sixty pounds of baggage and started up Jefferson avenue in search of a tavern. He was a right up and down man, and he wanted to strike a tavern where they had an old fashioned boiled dinner.

"Just come in from Lansing," he observed as he fell in with a pedestrian.

"Did, eh? Been out to the Legislature?"

"You bet I have. I'm not a member, but I have made things hum there, all the same."

"Have a bill?"

"Not exactly. I come down from county to take the kinks out of our member. He was sailing in with a high head, and if I'd waited ten days longer, he'd have been bossing the whole State. What d'ye think?"

"I dunno."

"He wouldn't speak to me when I first got there! Think of that! Up home there we rated him about No. 4, and sent him down to Lansing because none of the rest of us could leave, and he wanted to cut me colder'n a wedge! What do you think?"

"Rather mean."

"You bet! But I lowered his nose a bit. We'd heard how he was prancing around and putting on airs and making out that he run our county, and a few of us got together and wrote him a letter. It didn't seem to do any good, so we got together again and they sent me down to put on the currycomb."

"And you did?"

"Didn't I? He put in about a dozen bills affecting our country, and I mashed all but two. He had laid himself out for six or seven speeches, and I mashed all but one. The first day I got there he was supporting motions, and moving to amend and strike out, but I mighty soon let him understand that no such chaff passed for oratory with us. He tried to bulldoze me at first, but when he found that his constituency had got after him he calmed down. He'd been fooling with the game law, and had got mixed up with a dog tax bill, and a saw-log law, and a bill about inland fishing, and I know not what else. I took him out behind the State House, and says I: 'Now my boy, you squat! Your constituents demand that you calm right down. We don't want no Cicero in ours, and we won't have it. We sent you down here to do a little quiet work, and not to prance around and imagine you've got Patrick Henry's hat on. We are humble people, taking kindly to log houses and Johnny cake, and we don't go a cent on big words and long flourishes. That's what I told him, and he calmed.'

"Did, eh?"

"You bet he did! and if we hear anything more about his rising to explain his vote on the dog tax, or moving to recommit the muskrat bill, our country won't be no place for him to return to. This is the place, eh? Well I'll todder up and take the train for home."

Out-Door Safety.

The fear of the weather has sent multitudes to their graves who otherwise might have lived in health for many years longer. The fierce north wind and the furious snow-storm kill comparatively few, while hot winter rooms and crisp summer suns have countless hecatombs of human victims to attest their power. Except in localities where malignant miasmata prevail, and that only in warm weather, out-door life is the healthiest and happiest, from the tropics to the poles.

The general fact speaks for itself, that persons who are out-of-doors most take cold least. In some parts of our country nearly one-half of our adult deaths are from diseases of the air-passages. These ailments arise from taking cold in some way or another; and surely the reader will take some interest in a subject which by at least one chance out of four, his own life may be lost.

All colds, we believe, arise from one or two causes.

1. By getting cold too quickly after exercise, either as to the whole body or any part of it.

2. By being chilled, and remaining so for a long time, from want of exercise.

To avoid colds from the former, we have only to go to a fire the moment the exercise ceases, in the winter. If in the summer, repair at once to a closed room, and there remain with the same clothing on until cooled off.

To avoid colds from the latter cause, and these engender the most speedily fatal diseases, such as pleurisy, croup, and inflammation of the lungs, called pneumonia, we have only to compel ourselves to walk with sufficient vigor to keep off a feeling of chilliness. Attention to a precept contained in less than a dozen words would add twenty years to the average of civilized life.

Keep away chilliness by exercise; cool off slowly. Then you will never take cold, in door or out.

An organization of ex-confederate soldiers has been effected at Chattanooga with Colonel J. B. Cooke as President. It is proposed to tender a reception to the Army of the Cumberland at its re-union in Chattanooga in September.

Prejudice Kills.

"Eleven years our daughter suffered on a bed of misery under the care of several of the best (and some of the worst) physicians who gave her disease various names but no relief, and now she is restored to us in good health by as simple a remedy as Hop Bitters, that we had pooled at for two years, before using it. We earnestly hope and pray that no one else will let their sick fears we did, on account of prejudice against so good a medicine as Hop Bitters."—The Parents—Telegram, 24-25.

In New York the other day a stevedore was injured by a falling cotton bale, and was placed in an ambulance apparently lifeless. As the vehicle rushed toward the morgue the surgeon in charge sounded the gong, as usual, to warn other vehicles. Suddenly he was startled by hearing the supposed dead man remark, "If you don't stop ringing that bell I'll get out and walk."

SURELY the ways of theatrical men are peculiar. When a lot of tramps congregate about the entrance to hear the music, and the policemen drives them away, the manager telegraphs all over the country that his play is an immense success, and that people are turned away from the doors.—Oil City Derrick.

—ADVERTISED.—For the reason an article is advertised and kept before the public, we should not discredit its worth, but hasten to inquire into, find out and put to proof the merits claimed for the goods so recommended. Dr. B. J. Kendall & Co., Gents:—I have a very fine mare that has had a bone spavin for a long time. I tried everything man could advise to cure it but all in vain and was about to give it up when a friend of mine in this city came to me and recommended Kendall's Spavin Cure which I tried with grand results, removing that bone clear and clean and then I sent 25 cents to you for one of your illustrated Horse Books and I think there is no better book printed on the horse and his diseases. I have taken great interest in it and have since sold 18 copies for you to my neighbors and will try and do what good I can by getting them for others.

—EMPLOYMENT FOR LADIES.—The Queen City Suspender Company, of Cincinnati, are now manufacturing and introducing their new Stocking Supporters for Ladies and Children, and their unequalled Skirt Suspenders for Ladies. None should be without them; our leading physicians recommend them, and are loud in their praise. These goods are manufactured by ladies who have made the wants of ladies and children a study, and they ask us to refer them to some reliable and energetic lady to introduce them in this county, and we certainly think that an earnest solicitation in every household would meet with a ready response, and that a determined woman could make a handsome salary and have the exclusive agency for this county. We advise some lady who is in need of employment to send to the Company her name and address, and mention this paper. Address: Queen City Suspender Company, Nos. 147 & 149 West Fourth Street, Cincinnati, Ohio. 21-71

Memorial Day at Hubbersburg, Jacksonville and other Places.

Decoration Day is over. Mr. Walters, of Snyderstown, is determined that the people of this vicinity shall not forget the country's dead, for through his influence the people of Hubbersburg, Jacksonville, Snyderstown and Zion were brought up to a point of enthusiasm in observing the day.

Early in the morning the people of Hubbersburg were out in force. Although it was the day of the week which the people, especially the ladies, could ill spare from their respective callings, yet whilst they were around the graves of those who had sacrificed their lives for their country, they felt it no sacrifice to give one day in their honor. Zion band having been engaged for the occasion, was soon on the ground, and the speakers, Hon. S. H. Yocum and W. F. Reeder, Esq., of Bellefonte, soon arrived. The ceremonies here were interesting, both speakers delivering able addresses.

The next point on the programme was Jacksonville. Many of the citizens accompanied the speakers and band to this place. Here was a large crowd awaiting them, and the Sunday-schools of the place out in procession with flags, wreaths and bouquets. They met first in the cemetery of the Reformed church, where there were several graves to decorate. The surviving soldiers present to decorate their comrades' graves were Samuel Bennis, Samuel Aley, G. M. Bette and, of course, Walters. Rev. S. S. Wallen, of the Presbyterian church, acted as chaplain, and the oration was delivered by W. F. Reeder, Esq., of Bellefonte. The large concourse of people, preceded by the band, then proceeded to the Presbyterian cemetery. Here were more graves to decorate than at any of the other places. The soldiers here taking part in the services were those mentioned above, and Mr. Christian Swartz. The Rev. Mr. Hartzell, of the Reformed church, acted as chaplain, and the oration was delivered by the Hon. S. H. Yocum. The sun was now bearing down in its strength, but the people were here under the cool shade trees, and enjoyed the ceremonies greatly. While these things were taking place the people, I think, will agree with your correspondent in saying we did not know of the good things that were to come after. What a thoughtful set of women the Marthas are! They seem to know well what is needed on such occasions. They had spread a long and full table in the church. The Marthas, during the war, fed the soldiers well whenever they had the chance, and they yet seem to be ready to do the same for the old veterans, and those who were then too young or too lazy, or too great towards, to be soldiers. May these Marthas enjoy peace, liberty and independence forever, so say all the hungry people. And in addition to the bountiful supply, while the people were at the tables they were entertained by music—sacred songs, anthems, etc., rendered by the united choirs of the Reformed and Presbyterian churches, Miss Hellen McCalmont, organist.

But the hour of 2 p. m. was appointed time of meeting at Snyderstown, and so the people soon scattered to make preparations to move on. At Snyderstown the same interest was manifested, and a new feature here added to the ceremonies was the singing of the ladies as they advanced in the procession to form a circle around graves. Whilst the graves were here being decorated the clouds which had been gathering threatened rain and storm, so the people took refuge in the old Lutheran church to hear the speeches. The speech of Mr. Reeder was finely delivered, and that of Mr. Yocum, of course, everybody knows his would be good—plain, practical and appropriate, as all his addresses of the day were. His reference to the rolling thunder—the artillery of heaven—guided and controlled by the same hand that controls the destiny of nations, was very aptly brought in, for at this time there were several very loud peals of thunder, and so near that one at least, a young lady, a Miss Emerich, was severely shocked, and we learn that she is not yet able to be taken to her home, suffering apparently from paralysis.

Your correspondent did not go to Zion, and has learned nothing of the proceedings at that place. We have shown honor to the dead soldiers by strewing their graves with flowers, which is proper and right, but this will all have the appearance of mockery unless we show love for the country for which they fought, and endeavor to preserve the institutions for which they bled, by committing them to the hands of men honest and upright, who will keep the trust and work for the people's good, and not spend their time in fighting for political preferences and voting them more pay.

A Mexican Bull-Fight.

The bull-fight is still an institution of Mexico, performances being given nearly every Sunday and holiday. It is a relic of barbarism inherited from Spain. I will endeavor to give an account of the main features of one of these shows which I observed a few weeks since in Cuantitlan, a town reached by a ride of an hour and three-quarters over the Mexico Toluca and Cuantitlan narrow-gauge road. This road has been largely built from the proceeds of a lottery. The cars are taken in the central portion of the city and are drawn by mules until without its limits. We are left within a short distance of the "Plaza de Toros," so called, which is a circular arena of about seventy-five feet diameter, surrounded by a board fence six feet high, which is striped with the national colors, red, white and green. Outside of this are the seats for the spectators, made of rough boards and arranged in five tiers, each about two feet above that below. At the top is a space roofed over and divided into sections, which are provided with chairs. The main portion of the arena is entirely exposed to sun or rain. A band of about twelve pieces occupies a stand at one side and furnishes music continuously through the whole performance. Cries of "Toros! Toros!" begin to exhibit the impatience of the audience at the delay in commencing. At length doors to the east are thrown open and the performers enter. These consist of two clowns, three men mounted on poor, jaded, blindfolded horses and a number of men with red cloths to exasperate the bull. The men are dressed in suits of green or red, spangled with silver tinsel, with short knee breeches and white stockings, and they wear the hair knotted in a queue down the back.

The riders are provided with long poles, armed on the end with iron points to ward off the attacks of the bull. A door to the west is now opened and the animal enters, walking first to the centre of the circle and gazing around with an astonished look at the scene presented. A red cloth is now flaunted before him and with his head lowered he dashed toward the one who has dared to offend him. The men easily jump to one side or, if hard pressed, take refuge behind a guard consisting of boards placed at a distance of two feet from the enclosing fence. The bull often rushes at the horses, and, in spite of a thrust from the lance of the rider, succeeds in goring them, often in throwing both to the ground. Sometimes the bull himself is thrown. Nearly every bull kills one or more of the poor horses, but the men are seldom hurt. When this has continued for some time the horsemen retire and one of the men, holding a pointed stick adorned with variously-colored papers and ribbons in each hand, approaches the animal and throws them into his neck. They penetrate deep enough to draw blood and the slight pain exasperates him. Finally the matador appears with a sword in the right hand and a red cloth in the left. Concealing the weapon behind the cloth, he boldly approaches the now infuriated animal and, as he lowers his head to rush at him, stabs him in the neck. When done by an experienced man the wound proves fatal in a few minutes. The bull staggers and falls and is dispatched by a thrust from a short knife into the spinal cord in the back of the neck. A rope is now fastened to his horns and some horses drag out the carcass. The earth is shoveled over a little and the arena is ready for another combat.

Useful Hints.

Strong brine may be used to advantage in washing bedsteads; hot alum is also good for this purpose.

Glass should be washed in cold water, which gives a brighter and cleaner look than when cleansed with warm water.

To remove grass stains, wash the stained places in clean, cold, soft water, without soap, before the garment is otherwise wet.

A very admirable imitation of stained glass for windows can be produced by pasting over common windows thin sheets of silk paper printed in brilliant oil colors, tasteful in design. The effect is said to be fully equal to the finest colored glass, and the cost a trifle. This will open a new field to amateur lady artists even more fascinating than china painting.

The following ointment is excellent for an inflamed bunion: Iodine twelve grains; spermaceti ointment half an ounce. A portion about the size of a horse bean to be rubbed on the affected part twice or thrice a day. If the bunion is not inflamed, the best remedy is to place on it first a piece of diachylon plaster, oxide of lead and oil, and upon it a piece of thick leather, this having a hole the size of the bunion cut in it.

One of the simplest and most effectual things to whiten the hands is to take a wineglassful of eau de Cologne and another of lemon-juice; scrape two cakes of brown Windsor soap to a powder and mix in a mold; let it be till hard then use as ordinary soap. To whiten the nails, if red or coarse, take dilute sulphuric acid two drachms; tincture of myrrh one drachm; spring water four ounces; first cleanse the hands with the above soap then dip the fingers into the mixture. This should be done at least twice a day. Nothing adds so much to beauty as a well shaped hand, and nothing shows sooner the want of proper care and attention.

He Paid His Five Thousand Dollars.

But here comes one of my favorites. Isn't she fine looking? No? Well, listen while I tell you her story, and learn why I like her looks. Some years ago a man who had more money than good reputation advertised that he would give $5,000 to any respectable white woman who would walk unveiled from the Adams House entrance down Washington street with him at an hour when all the fashionables were promenading. For a week that offer remained unaccepted, for his reputation was such that no respectable woman would be seen with him and the advertisement had said "that none others need apply." Finally, this woman who had just passed us agreed to his terms and to join him at the appointed time and place. When the hour came Mr. — was on hand. Soon a carriage drove up with a lady. It had been noised abroad that the offer had been taken up, and quite a crowd had gathered to see him pay his five thousand dollars. He helped her alight, offered her his arm, walked a few steps with her, when she removed her veil at his request and revealed to his gaze a face as black as night. "You have deceived me," he said; "this is not fair." "I am not a darky," she replied, and to prove it she pulled off her gloves and showed a pair of hands as white as yours are this minute. The man turned toward the carriage, paid her the $5,000, and she drove off leaving him to the laughter and hoots of the amused crowd of bystanders. It turned out afterwards that the girl was very poor, and that she had a magnificent voice she could not cultivate for want of money, and this is the way she overcame that obstacle. She went to Europe and studied five years, and has returned one of our most brilliant singers.—San Francisco Bulletin Boston Letter.

Whipped by Women.

A special cable dispatch from Dublin, dated on Sunday night, says: "A bailiff went to serve writs on the property of Mr. Hutchins, near Mallow, County Cork, on Saturday. Some women gathered around and seized him, destroyed the writs and then stripped him naked and threw him into the river. They caught him as he came out and thrashed him with furze. The unfortunate man, more dead than alive, was then tarred and feathered and hunted through the country. A large party of police went out from Mallow to rescue him, but, after scouring the country, they were unable to find him. On Saturday morning the head of the dragon's horse which was killed in the fight at Mitchelstown, on Friday, was cut off and fixed on the top of a pole. The pole was decorated with green paper and crape. Streamers were appended to the head, and in the mouth was placed a piece of paper bearing the following words: 'Here's your rent.' The correspondent saw this ghastly spectacle early on Saturday morning. It was then surrounded by a crowd of women and children, who responded to the call of an old fellow for 'Three cheers for an English head on an Irish stick.' The head, with its appendages, was taken possession of by the police and brought to the barracks. Elaborate preparations are being made to renew the attempt to carry out the New Pallas evictions but on what day is not known, as the authorities keep all the dates of their movements strictly secret."

Wouldn't Bend His Knee.

Many ludicrous circumstances lent variety to the court life of George III., and gave vivacity to the conversation in the home circle. Thus, when a Mayor and Aldermen were admitted to the honor of a presentation to the Queen, and the Mayor advanced to kiss her hand:

"You must kneel, sir," said Col. Gwynne.

"I can't, sir," said the Mayor.

"You must bend the knee; you must kneel," insisted the Colonel.

But, instead of complying with the Colonel's directions, the Mayor seized the Queen's hand and carried it to his lips with much more loyal heartiness than of courtly refinement.

The worst of it was that all the Aldermen followed suit, supposing their chief had done the right thing.

As the Mayor was retiring, the Colonel indignantly interfered.

"You ought to have knelt, sir."

"I could not do it," said the Mayor.

"Everybody else can kneel," declared the Colonel, supposing, no doubt, that there was a French Republican on English soil.

"Yes, sir," returned the mayor, "but I have a wooden leg!"

There was a severe frost Monday night at Barnet, Vt. In the country round about St. Johns, N. B., ice formed in several places.

Jesse Harper, of Illinois has been elected chairman of the National Greenback-Labor Committee in place of Thos. H. Murch, resigned.

Piles.

Piles are frequently preceded by a sense of weight in the back, loins and lower part of the abdomen, causing the patient to suppose that he has some affection of the kidneys or neighboring organs. At times symptoms of indigestion are present, as flatulency, indigestion, etc. A moisture like perspiration, producing a very disagreeable itching, particularly at night, after getting warm in bed, is a very common attendant. Internal, External and Itching Piles yield at once on the application of Dr. Rosanko's Pile Remedy, which acts directly upon the parts affected, absorbing the tumors, allaying the intense itching, and effecting a permanent cure where all other remedies have failed. Do not delay until the drain upon the system produces permanent disability, but try it and be cured. Price, 50 cents. Ask your druggist for it, and when you cannot obtain it of him, we will send it prepaid on receipt of price. Address, The Dr. Rosanko Medicine Co., 1144 Ohio. Sold by J. Potts Green.

Local Department.

—While in the office of S. D. R. Esq., a few days since, we were shown a neatly gotten up draft of a survey executed by that gentleman. Mr. Ray has been devoting considerable of his attention, of late, to surveying and has the reputation of doing good and accurate work. Parties having lands to survey cannot do better than to employ Mr. Ray's services.

A somewhat amusing story is related of a passenger who occupied seat in the rear car. When the shog came he, as well as the other passengers, was thrown violently from his seat, but, unlike some others, was not seized with the worst kind of a panic. He lingered not to get his bearings, but punched a hole through a window and climbed out onto the road. It was so dark outside that he could not tell where to jump to, not knowing the lay of the land, and he finally

—Mr. James Crust, of near F more, occupied one of our sanct chairs on Saturday. Although pr well along in years, Mr. C. is one the most active farmers in that s tion, and harvests good crops to sh for his work. He reports that so of the wheat fields in his locality looking badly, and that the crop v be almost a total failure.

of $3,000 on an aged lady for quite a sum of money to a Cumru tow ship man. After the tow was paid and the policy put away in side pocket, the purchaser reached into another pocket, drew out a wallet, and at the same time a revolver and said: "Now, boy, I'll give $1,000 cash additional, if you will go and shoot the old woman dead." It is needless to say that the job was not accepted.

--The eclipse of the moon on Sunday night, or rather Sunday morning, was watched with interest in Bellefonte, many of our citizens maining up to observe the interesting spectacle. When the face of the ball had become nearly obscured from view, it presented a very pretty sight resembling a ball of fire suspended in the heavens, although not brilliant
